

The Clark Kent Chronicles

A Mothers Tale of Life With Her ADHD and Aspergers Son Theyre the parents who other people secretly believe must be doing a crappy job, the ones whose children don lacrosse gloves to weed the flowerbed, wont turn in their homework, and throw age-inappropriate tantrums in public. Theyre the parents one frayed nerve short of a breakdown as they scrub off the giant perceived L for Loser on their foreheads, turning for help to every source they can think of, because their kids just dont respond like other kids, because their kids arent like other kids. Their very brains are wired differently, and the disciplines, motivators, and strategies that are supposed to work on them, according to conventional wisdom, dont. These are the parents of children on the ADHD Spectrum, and most of them have used up their Phone a Friend Lifeline and just want a little understanding and the hope of shared knowledge from someone else who has survived a life like theirs. They are parents like Pamela Fagan Hutchins, whose son, dubbed Clark Kent the WonderKid, has ADHD and Aspergers Syndrome. Pamela takes readers on a heart-wrenching and hilarious road trip from toddler to adulthood with Clark Kent and his family, sharing their collective wisdom and empathy along the way.
